

JACKSON COUNTY SENTINEL

VOL. 22. No. 29

GAINESBORO, TENN., THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1920

$1.50 A YEAR

SEVEN MONTHS SCHOOL TERM PETITIONED FOR BY TEACHERS.

The teachers of Jackson county have presented the following petition to the members of the county court.

We the undersigned teachers of Jackson County, realizing the imperative need of a longer term of school in our county and in order that we may rank with our neighboring counties along educational lines, providing an opportunity for the children to complete a grade in a year, do hereby ask and earnestly petition you to give us sufficient money, by taxation to continue our schools at least 7 months in the year.

Respectfully,

Eula Dycus.

Prepare For The Revival Meeting At Woodrow.

Let all the people of the community who are interested in community building, in the development of Christian character and in the salvation of sinners from sin, line up for the series of meetings which are to begin next Sunday afternoon at Woodrow.

The Bible says, "One sinner destroys much good." Then a man ought not to be a sinner. Did you ever know a man to destroy his own character and his own happiness because of his own sins? Did you ever know a young man to destroy the happiness of his mother because of his sins? Did you ever know of husband destroying the happiness of his precious family because of his sins?

You will not have to think long until many of the above mentioned cases will pass in review before your minds eye. Sinners are destructive characters. The worst of all is they destroy their own souls and will have to suffer the pangs of hell in the eternal world.

It is true that sinners have many admirable traits, and we should see the possibilities of good in them and try to develop them. God saw so much good about every sinner that he was willing to let his son die in order to save that immortal soul from the torturing realities of the lake that burns with fire and brimstone. Ought we not to love them enough to make a sacrifice for them while sacrificing will avail to their salvation.

A boy who is really and truly interested in the church never does much meanness. A man who is really interested in the churches and Sunday schools never commits much crime. A citizenship that is really and truly interested in Christianity never fails to make a tremendously great contribution to the proper development of their country. Then will not God hold us responsible, if we do not seek to interest the rising generation and all others in these highest and best things? Be honest with yourself, with your God, and with your country.

It is the purpose of the writer to preach such a gospel as will help everybody who will accept it. If he fails in this, he shall have failed indeed, but if he succeeds, God will be with him regardless of the indifference and sins of the people.

Every Christian in the Woodrow community ought to call upon God during this week to help us make the meeting a success and to be ready to help answer the prayer.

BRIEF SKETCH OF GOV. JAMES M. COX, DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR PRESIDENT--HAS BRILLIANT RECORD.

Not unlike many another boy who attained prominence in later life, James Middleton Cox, governor of Ohio, was born on a farm near Jacksonburg, O., March 31, 1870. He attended the district schools of the neighborhood, became a printer's devil, printer, school teacher, newspaper reporter, private secretary to a congressman, owner, manager, editor and proprietor of two newspapers, member of congress for three terms and governor of the state of Ohio for three terms.

In the eyes of his friends this record is an outstanding reason for his candidacy for President in the coming campaign, and it is added by his friends from the Buckeye state that this is not only the sentiment of those of his own political faith, the Democratic party, but by many men of all other political faiths.

The early trend of Ohio toward progressive thought in government and the enlivening of activity along these lines brought to the front in congressional politics James M. Cox, who espoused these principles from his first appearance in public life.

The same application which made Mr. Cox a successful business man by his own efforts and from which he achieved a good-sized fortune, made him a congressman regarded as exceptionally efficient, and governor of a nominally Republican state.

He first became a candidate for governor as a leader of the progressive movement which demanded changes in the state constitution.

As a proponent of these changes he took the field on behalf of the proposed amendments and was called to the Democratic party into its councils and made its candidate for governor. Successful in the following election he continued the work he had mapped out in his original campaign and obtained the passage and enactment of laws which placed to the constitution in its new form in full effect.

However, before all of the changes in contemplation could be assimilated, a political contest developed in the turmoil of the following election, Governor Cox was defeated for re-election.

Undismayed by the sudden shock to his political ambition, the former governor braved the storm and again became a candidate in the next gubernatorial race. In this election he was successful and served the state as its leader in the numerous activities during the war.

Again in the face of a political reversal of opinion which sent a tidal wave across the state, Governor Cox was elected for a third term by an overwhelming majority when every other candidate on the Democratic ticket was defeated. In this connection it may be stated that no other governor has served three years in the state of Ohio save Rutherford B. Hayes, who left his third term as governor to become President of the United States.

During the turmoil preceding the war when industrial unrest was so prevalent in states where large manufacturing interests were centered. Governor Cox displayed his ability as a leader of his constituency in meeting the situation. This same leadership was carried on during the period of the war and has since come through the reconstruction with all its attendant disorders, with domestic peace and without at any time resorting to force.

James Middleton Cox started his active career as a school teacher in District No. 1, in Wayne township, Butler county, where he had earlier attended school. His evenings were spent in the printing office of the local publications and a few years later he was accepted as a reporter on the staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer. The next ten years were devoted to active newspaper work in almost every capacity of that newspaper.

He is next heard of as private secretary to Congressman Paul Sorg of the Third Ohio district, and at the close of his in Washington he purchased the Dayton, O., Dailey News, borrowing most of the money with which to carry on the business of the paper which at the time had a very small circulation.

Mr. Cox put all his energies into making the publication a successful business venture and so well did he carry out his plans that he was soon owner also of the Springfield Daily News which today stands as one of the newspaper successes of the country.

In 1908 he was nominated and elected to congress from the Third Ohio district and was re-elected for a second and third term.

In public life, Governor Cox was always regarded as a progressive and many of the laws now on the statute books of his home state which bear this progressive trend were sponsored by him both as congressman and governor.

Among these laws for which the Governor assumes responsibility are: A model workman's compensation act; a child labor law that has been copied by several other states; a mother's pension system; the initiative and referendum; a scientific budget; a prison farm providing healthy occupation for convicts; elimination of sweatshops; a blue sky law to protect Ohio investors; consolidation of useless bureaus; time limit on storage of food products and to check profiteering; extension of good roads system by main market and inter-country roads.

School men in Ohio are quoted as saying that the Ohio school code of today will live as an everlasting monument to the achievements of Gov. Cox.

Governor Cox recently purchased the farm near Jacksonburg upon which he was born and is transforming it into a modern farm where he expects to spend his later days. He has a comfortable modern suburban home at Dayton which he designed and where he resides when not in the state capitol attending to his official duties.

Gov. Cox has four children, two boys and two girls.

W. F. Maddux As Candidate For Representative.

To the Voters and Citizens of Jackson County, Tennessee.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for the democratic nomination for the office of Representative, subject to the action of the democratic primary to be held August 5, 1920.

I was born and reared in the 5th civil district of Jackson county, and refer you to any good citizen in that district, as to my personal character. I have been a life long democrat and am heartily in accord with the platform adopted by that party, both State and National, and should I be elected to the house of Representatives I will do everything in my power, to have enacted into laws, those things which our State Democratic Convention pledged the party while in session at Nashville on the 8th day of June 1920.

In case I should win the nomination of my party, and be elected to represent Jackson County, I will use my influence to redeem the party pledges. No man shall or will control my actions, but, I will on all questions vote for what I think is to the best interest of the majority of the people in Jackson County.

I solicit the vote and influence of each and every one of you. The limited time between this and the date of the election will prevent me from getting to see you all, yet I wish to thank you for anything you may do to sorrow my interest.

Assuring you of my best wishes regardless of whom you may nominate for the office I seek, and promising my hearty support to the nominee, should you make some one else your nominee.

Yours truly,
W. F. Maddux.

CARTHAGE, TENN.

Carthage, Tenn.
July 11, 1920.

Dear Editor and Readers:

If you will humble yourselves to read a few lines from a Jackson county boy I will come again.

Was very sorry to hear of the death of "Uncle" Bill Loftis, for he was sure a friend to all who knew him, and will be greatly missed by all. The bereaved ones have our sympathy.

L. G. Cason and wife spent the 4th in Livingston. Mrs. Cason's two brothers returned with them and spent the week in Carthage.

Everything is dull around this place since tobacco season is over, for the tobacco market is the life of this place.

R. H. Little, of Livingston, secretary of the Carthage Marble Works was here helping with the work last week. We are behind with our orders owing to the railroad tie-ups.

Come on Hurricane with the news each week, for we enjoy your letters.

Hello! Andrew Flynn. What are you doing for sport?

R. H. Little, Fred Creasy, Buster and Lillard Stephens, Pearl Mabry and L. G. Cason and wife motored to Red Boiling Springs Thursday evening returning that night. All reported a nice time.

Hello! Mrs. A. M. Terry of Cal., give us a letter each week with all the news.

Carthage defeated Cain-Sloan ball team of Nashville, July 5. Score 3 to 5 after 11 innings. It was a fast game all the way thru.

With best wishes to the Sentinel and its many readers.

L. G. Cason and wife.

STOCK LAW AND OTHER ORDINANCES TO BE ENFORCED TO THE LETTER.

We have attempted to run the corporation without the necessity of spending the town's money for the employment of an officer, but it seems as though this cannot be done. The people who should be looking after, and assisting the authorities in preventing a violation of both, City and State laws persist in violating them.

Many of the citizens of the town, whether intentionally or unthoughtful, I am not prepared to say, allow their horses, cows, or hogs run at large and commit depredation upon their neighbors. A few nights ago cows broke into the garden of a widow woman in town and bit down her corn and destroyed other garden truck. Almost daily I have complaints of depredations committed by hogs and cows, by breaking in and destroying gardens and yards.

There is a State Law, as well as a City Ordinance, which makes the owner of stock, who permits them to run at large, criminally liable, as well as liable in damages for their depredations, and ALL OWNERS WILL NOW TAKE NOTICE, that, both the State and City law in regard to stock running at large, is going to be enforced to the letter, and if you have stock out, get them up and do it now, regardless of who you may be.

Clean up the streets and sidewalks around your place, and DO IT NOW.

This notice will not appear again, but if you do not do as requested you will have to call on the officer for your hogs and cows, and face the court for the violation of other laws and ordinances. In other words you can prepare to pay the fiddler.
